While we're constructing the new classroom, 27 children need stimulation.  Bridges of Hope have found a space for a make-shift classroom.  Furnished with donated goods, it's not ideal, but the kids are excited.

Most of them had never held a pencil, let alone a crayon, and none of them had ever seen a puzzle. But it didn't take them long to discover how to use them.  Little sponges soaking up everything around them.

It's a bit chilly, but it's fun, and they're loving it.
